FROM THE LSFSC PRESIDENT

By Longranger Rick
SASS # 62056

Just a reminder, be sure and dust off those 1911 magazines and get some ammo loaded for wild bunch, we've got a State Championship match coming up real soon. (October 15th and 16th 2011) Applications on line at www.lsfsc.com and our 3rd annual Halloween match (October 29th and 30th 2011) will be here just in time for a little pre-regional practice.

Now for the work part; with state championships just 9 months away, we're going to need a work day a month to get ready. Hopefully mother nature will stop knocking down buildings...! And thanks to all that brave the heat this time of the year to come out and lend a hand. In July we had quite a few that helped with removing all the scattered stages and debris.

And Now for the warning label: The landowner has expressed a concern about open flames and sparks on the ranch, there have been several ongoing wildfires within several miles of the property. Let's be very careful at the range...!

Hopefully we'll have a little break in the heat and some good weather for CCVV's SHOWDOWN 2011. I'm looking forward to that gun cart I'm going to win, cause I sent my entry fees in early...!

FROM THE CVV PRESIDENT

I am going to keep it short this month. Showdown is just a few weeks away and things are coming together. We are going to need help with the side matches, everything will be setup and ready. All that you will need to do is to run the clock and log the scores. If you have not gotten your entrance form in please do so. We have around 30 preregistered and if we receive your entire form by Aug 7 you will be entered in a drawing for a 4 gun Rugged Gear Gun cart. And yes I did extend the date form Aug 1 to Aug 7.

One thing I do need to relay a message from our land owner. Due to the dry condition he has asked that anyone who smokes please discard their cigarette butts properly and not on the ground. And if he catches any one discarding a cigarette butt on the ground they will be asked to leave his property. With this news we will have containers with sand in them at all stages. We already have several under the awning for some time now, so please use them, we do not want any one asked to leave.

We need more of your old SASS "Cowboy Chronicle" issues. I want every new shooter prospect, who comes to Ormsby Ranch, to leave with a copy of the Chronicle, to read over as they contemplate our CAS sport and SASS. When you bring Chronicles to a match, give them to me or leave them inside the office (the middle building).

During July, I e-mailed every new address provided to "Long Ranger Rick" by "Misty Moonshine" and "Wild Shot" from SASS. These are all of the SASS new members for TX. Those in North Texas, I especially invited to come on out to Ormsby Ranch and join us. To them and those further away, I announced CVV Showdown at Ormsby Ranch, our Oct. SASS Texas State Wild Bunch Match, and LSFSC Halloween Match... Let's see how much more NEW interest we can get!

A big howdy and welcome to new members! "Dusty Reins", a.k.a. Jim Russom, is a new LSFSC member from Watauga, TX. "Dusty" isn't gunned-up, yet for CAS, but he has already contributed to our range work party of Sat. July 16. Thank you "Dusty Reins". "Ranger Dunn", a.k.a. Patrick Kaler, is the newest CVV member, hailing from Arlington, TX. Ranger Dunn has his CAS guns and showed much promise at the July 23, 24 CVV matches, and intends to join LSFSC, too. Glad to have you aboard!

BLAST FROM THE PAST

SHOOTING CLUB
COMPETITIONS
BASED ON HISTORY
By Matt Smith

Reprinted from the
Cleburne Times-Review
May 16, 2011

Shooting, history and period dress mix with Old West camaraderie the second weekend of each month [rain or shine] at the Ormsby Ranch located off of Farm-to-Market Road 1434 to provide a lot of family fun. "We don't do re-enactments out here, that's a whole other deal," said Noel "Texas Banker" Mullins, treasurer of the Lone Star Frontier Shooting Club. "What this is, is people from all walks of life getting together to have more fun than they ought to be able to have."

LSFSC, formed about 1998, is an affiliated club of the international organization called the Single Action Shooting Society. Both exist to preserve and promote the sport of Cowboy Action Shooting through regional matches conducted by the affiliate clubs, according to the SASS website. SASS also sponsors regional, national and worldwide competitions. The organization further strives to protect members' Second Amendment rights, and ensure safety and consistency in competition.

Cowboy Action Shooting involves several disciplines using an array of firearms. The timed competitions take place on "Old West" style stages. Each competition sets up a specific situation, most based on famous incidents from the old west, or scenes from classic western movies. Mock buildings and stages at Ormsby Ranch include a saloon, a jail and the Alamo among others from which competitor's fire at targets using pistols, rifles and shotguns. LSFSC hosted their annual Wild Bunch competition in April, a competition based somewhat on the famous film of the same name, and on military-style shooting circa the World War I era.

By early Friday morning, a number of recreational vehicles, several vendors and about 100 competitors and spectators were already on hand, with many more expected later in the day. Texas Banker led the way, pointing out the lay of the land and discussing activities planned for the weekend.

About the name: SASS members adopt nicknames unique to them, which are registered with the organization to ensure no two people share the same handle. "Everyone uses an alias," Texas Banker said. "Most, myself included, only know almost everyone by their nicknames only instead of their real names." Participation is also a case of historic costume de rigueur.

Participants, going by names such as Two Gun Johnnie, Cowtown Jack, Comanche Girl and Hot Tamale, perambulate about decked out in cowboy, law enforcement, military personnel, prairie settler and other old west finery. LSFSC's monthly get-togethers attract members of all ages, both locally and from out of state. "A lot of the women out here are just as good as the men," Texas Banker said. "Quite a few of them [men] can't out shoot them." In addition to the shooting competitions, participants credit a love of history, a fondness for old western movies and the opportunity to travel and meet new people with drawing them into the organization. Plus, it's just a lot of fun to dress up and shoot stuff, several said. "Well, you have a number of disciplines here, rifle, pistol and shotgun," member Dusty Bottoms said. "This combines all three, which makes for good competition. Then you have the dressing up in old west style, which is fun and sort of revisiting our heritage. Some people dress to a specific character, some historic, some just dress silly like me."

The acceptable time period runs from about 1860 to early 1900s. "So you're looking at Civil War, cowboys, outlaws, railroad conductors, kind of just wherever your imagination takes you," member Goatneck Clem said. "It's just something that's great for the families and kiddos whether you're competing or watching as a spectator." Member Joey Z, an Irving resident sporting a top hat, said he became involved with LSFSC about a year ago. "I just like to shoot, and this gives me a good reason since I don't hunt," Joey Z said after shooting his first round of competition for the day.

Abilene resident, Texas Slim, a five-time state regional champion and two-time Texas state champion in the sport, said he became involved with SASS about 12 years ago, and called competing the best thing that's ever happened to him and his family. "Bragging rights," Texas Slim said when asked what the competition winners received. "We don't give away pink Cadillacs out here, just a bunch of fun shooting all day with your buds."

That love of competition has taken Texas Slim from Texas to Colorado to Montana and other locales, he said. "We go somewhere pretty much every week and shoot somewhere," Texas Slim said.

Equally important to the competition is the opportunity to get together with friends old and new, Texas Slim said. "You never meet a stranger out here," Texas Slim said. "Even if it's someone you didn't know before, everyone's like, 'Hey buddy, how's it going?'"

Alabama resident and member Comanche Girl, one of the many vendors set up at the event, agreed. "People that come to the competitions are really good people, a different breed," Comanche Girl said. "It's like a family, really. Coming out here, my truck broke down and had to be towed into Alvarado. Several people showed up with a trailer to bring my merchandise in, loaned me a truck for the weekend, and helped me set up. Where else are you going to find a group of people that good?"

Comanche Girl echoed Texas Banker's sentiments that a number of the women competing can out shoot their husbands. "But I find that western and southern women are a little more vested in what they do," Comanche Girl joked. "The eastern women are more worried about breaking a fingernail." Comanche Girl paused from engraving a pistol to discuss her custom-made knives and leather goods on sale. "I'd been involved in beads and sewing since I was a kid," Comanche Girl said. "Got interested in [SASS] through my husband. But I love to sew and create and got into the bead work because you can't find quality items like they used to make anymore.

"It takes some time to put these together right. You're looking at hand-cut lacing and sewing through five layers of leather." The fellowship and numerous activities offer something for everyone, even non-shooters, several members said. "Lot of people hear about this and come out just to watch," Texas Banker said. "A lot of them eventually get interested in following the competitions or even dressing up or competing themselves."
